"The future of Christianity is assured because its message meets a very real need in human life, and there will always be a market for a product that meets a fundamental need."
“Kingdom building” is a phrase used to describe an interesting and somewhat baffling process which goes on in almost every human organization. It is the result of a tendency to multiply organizational details, to build institutional machinery, and to take the time of ever-increasing numbers of people to operate it.

Perhaps the clearest illustration of this is in government, where agencies and bureaus grow ever larger and larger, and any effort to cut back or hold down the burgeoning structure is met with wails of anguish.

It happens in large corporations, where the president requires ever more vice-presidents, each of whom has to have one or two “assistants to the vice-president,” who in turn require several administrative officers, each of whom must have a secretary and a staff of clerks. And so it goes.

Kingdom building of this sort may even take place in the church. At all levels there is a tendency for committees and boards to spring up at the slightest pretext. More and more people may be drawn into the operation of the organization until the whole process reminds one of the engineer on the little old-fashioned steam locomotive who complained that every time he blew the whistle he didn’t have enough steam left to turn the wheels.

But there is another kind of Kingdom building of a vastly different sort. It is the kind for which the Church has been commissioned. It is the building of the kingdom of God in the hearts and lives of men and women in this world, in preparation for the glorious kingdom our Lord and Christ will someday turn over to His Father (I Corinthians 15:23-25).

The last question His disciples asked the risen Christ concerned the Kingdom: “Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?” His answer is revealing: “It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth” (Acts 1:6-8).

If I may be permitted to read a bit between the lines here, it seems the Lord was telling His apostles that it was not the restoration of the old kingdom, but the creation of the new which was to concern them. The times and seasons are in the Father’s authority. He will take care of the events which will usher in the Kingdom which Daniel foresaw, “which shall never be destroyed” (Daniel 2:44). In the meantime it is given to us to build that spiritual Kingdom which is set up in human hearts and lives when the King reigns there.

Of course, this Kingdom within is a supernatural work. God has “delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son” (Colossians 1:13). It happens when we are converted and born again: “Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven” (Matthew 18:3). “Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God” (John 3:3). This inner Kingdom “is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost” (Romans 14:17).

But building the Kingdom makes demands of us. We are the “King’s heralds.” It is our privilege and task to bear witness to the reality of this King-
The Heroism of PEACE

General Superintendent Benner

WAR, tragic as it is, generates heroism. War produces high emotional tension, a certain idealism of motive, and eloquent expressions and deeds of patriotism.

On Memorial Day we pay tribute to those whose heroism led them into “the valley of the shadow”—hundreds of thousands who lie, not only in their native country, but also beneath “crosses row on row” in sacred foreign soil.

But the message of Memorial Day is not to the dead but to the living. Their heroism is secure and, in Lincoln’s immortal words, “above our poor power to add or detract.” Surely we should be able to do more than build imposing monuments and hold memorial services. The greatest and most significant memorials are intangible, living.

It depreciates not one whit the exalted heroism of our fallen warriors to recognize the basis, character, and results of war. Every war represents an episode in distorted human relations. In every war there have been the elements of ambition, suspicion, fear, falsity, and hatred. War automatically exaggerates too many of the weak elements of humanity. War is abnormal. War is a “losing game” for all concerned. Economically, war is fantastically wasteful and inevitably brings an incalculable measure of human loss in death, suffering, and sorrow. And ultimately war is futile.

Now hear this! This is not a plea for blind pacifism. We are not bound to sit idly by as godless and inhuman forces take over our world by default. The defense and protection of liberty and other basic human rights are still the responsibility of those who cherish these values.

But in the light of the cost, the devastation, the suffering, the futility of war, Christians everywhere should be willing and eager to turn the usual enthusiasm, heroism, sacrifice, and energy of war toward the cause of peace, toward rightsing the wrongs and healing the ills of the world. This is “The Heroism of Peace.”

As Christians we profess to follow the Prince of Peace. Our first responsibility is to see that “the peace of God” reigns in our own hearts. Then we must bend every effort and utilize every influence of prayer and Christian attitudes toward Christian relationships in all of life.

As Nazarenes we make our primary and most significant contribution through “Evangelism First”—the aggressive, world-wide program of bringing men and women into touch with God through Jesus Christ. But we also must sense our responsibility for conditions in the world in which we live. True, in the ultimate sense our citizenship is in heaven,” but this does not release us from the very real responsibility of our here-and-now citizenship in our country and our world.

“Pray for the peace of Jerusalem,” exhorted the Psalmist. In the light of modern problems and terrifying possibilities of destruction, it is all the more important that we pray for the peace of our world, and prove the faith and sincerity of our prayers by our works.

ALMIGHTY GRACE
By JESSIE W. FINKS

We flog when there is no vision.
No uplift to help us along—
When life is a round of trivial things.
No sunshine to give us a song.
When it seems we cannot go further
In study, or kitchen, or task.
It is then that we need almighty grace,
And all we need do is to ask!

A MAN who sees only one point speaks with great definiteness. It depends on the scope of your horizon. If you are only looking at a ceiling in a room, you can describe it very accurately. But it is different if you are looking at the stars of the heavens, some of them so far away that if their light started our way when the star was guiding the wise men to the birthplace of Jesus it is just now beginning to stab the darkness of outer space with its piercing rays. You realize now that words are not everything—that the Spirit sometimes makes intercessions with groanings that cannot be uttered. You can now construe a sigh, not into despair, but into a supplication. So long as a man can sigh and that sigh is seeking heaven, he is calling out inaudibly, so far as words are concerned, for God, yea, for the living God. The meaning of that sigh being interpreted is, "Oh that I knew where I might find him!" Your prayers may not be as eloquent in words but may be deeper in meaning.—B. V. Mars.

As of May 5, the Easter Offering amounts to approximately $1,075,000. This is already the largest Easter Offering in our history. With money still coming in, it is almost assured that this will be the largest single offering, exceeding the 1958 Golden Anniversary Thanksgiving Offering, which was a record with $1,098,837 received.

The commitments of the church made this record amount imperative, and Nazarenes around the world responded with prayer and devotion to the cause of Christ. We praise God, from whom all blessings flow. In behalf of all who will be blessed through this offering, we thank every faithful district superintendent, every loyal pastor, evangelist, and layman who, by giving "six dollars per minute," purchased a great block of time—time in which, if Jesus tarries, we shall preach the gospel of full salvation around the world.

BEAMING FORTH

THE GOSPEL

By C. WARREN JONES
Retired Nazarene-Elder, Bethany, Oklahoma

Turn on the radio.

What a marvel! We are certainly living in the "Radio Age." We listen to the music, the singing, the messages, and the news that come into our homes over the ether waves.

What a wonderful means of communication is radio! It has dwarfed distance and brought far-away places nearer than our next-door neighbors. We listen to voices in London, Bombay, and Tokyo. We get the news from these distant cities, not minutes or hours after it has happened, but while it is taking place. Our President can sit before a microphone in Washington, D.C., and address a worldwide audience.

At the present time there are over 326,000,000 radio receiving sets in the world. About one-half of them are in North America, 118,000,000 in Europe, 3,000,000 in the Near East, and 16,000,000 in Latin America. Outside of North America, 60 per cent of these receiving sets are short-wave, and that means a potential listening audience in South America, Australia, Asia, Europe, and Africa of 500,000,000. These vast numbers are increasing every year. Very soon the entire world will have access to the radio.

The gospel is going out over the radio. This is a type of missionary work that is relatively new, but one which has great potentialities. We are in the early morning of the Christian radio broadcasting. The entire project has hardly gotten out of its swaddling clothes. A great future lies just ahead. What a challenge to the missionary churches, societies, and individuals that desire to give the gospel to the world!

It is hard to see how the Protestant churches will ever be able to send out a sufficient number of missionaries to make the Great Commission a reality. The increase in population is far greater than the missionary recruits. We are not trying to minimize what has been done by the missionaries. They have filled a great place in God's program, but the task is too great. The world's missionary force is in need of help. The radio with its broadcasting facilities can meet that need, doing what the missionaries cannot do.

Let us read Matthew 24:14: "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." The end referred to is the closing out of the Holy Ghost dispensation, when Jesus Christ will make His second advent into the world. Before that wonderful event takes place, the nations must hear the gospel. The only way this can be accomplished under present conditions is by the use of the radio. Millions of people are now hearing the gospel who never heard it before, and the remaining millions of earth are going to hear the good news in the very near future. The fulfilling of this scripture will hasten the coming of the Lord.

Millions now living in every nation are hearing the gospel. Many of these have never seen the face of a missionary or a national worker, but they are listening to the gospel. The radio is piercing the iron curtain, the bamboo curtain, and the purple curtain. Godless dictators are doing their best to "jam" the Christian broadcasts; but in spite of all their efforts, powerful radio stations are getting the message through and millions for the first time are hearing about the Redeemer and Saviour of men.

Our radio message, "Showers of Blessing," is being broadcast by more than four hundred stations around the world. Our task of spreading the gospel is a world-wide undertaking. Our Spanish broadcast is beamed forth from fifty-two stations in Central and South America. FEBC is a powerful Christian broadcasting station in Manila operating twenty-four hours a day and giving out the gospel in thirty-six different languages. Our missionaries in India cannot get a broadcast on the government-controlled radio, but they are not defeated. They prepare the tape, send it to FEBC in Manila, and from there it is beamed back to India over short wave and millions of people in India are getting the Nazarene gospel message.

HCJB, another powerful Christian broadcasting station in Quito, Ecuador, is beaming the gospel to Latin America, Europe, and even to Africa.

The twentieth-century radio effort will supplement what missionaries of the world have done and are doing. The Christian radio message is the advance agent for the missionaries. Millions will hear the message over the radio, accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour, and be included in the “whosoever will” who “take the water of life freely.”

CHURCH Mergers and Christian Union

By Russell F. Metcalfe, Pastor, Atwater, Ohio

An increasingly common item of news interest these days is the comment by some eminent clergyman or another, in an interview, a sermon, or banquet speech, to the effect that it is a shame the way Christians are divided by divergent doctrines and views, and that a great, united Christian Church would be the ideal. Especially in view of the united front presented to the so-called Christian nations by international communism.

Most evangelical Christians realize how unrealistic this sort of talk is, even though they do not fully understand the reasons why it is unrealistic. Actually, church mergers are not only not an answer to disunity among Christians, but are a force for diluting whatever power there may be left in many denominations.

Merger talk comes primarily from two sources. First, there are those churches termed “ritualistic” who are responding to the now famous “ecumenical message” of the present Pope of the Roman church. While deploring Christian disunity, and mouthing words which could be taken for recognition of equality of the Christian status of those other than Roman Catholics, there has been no hint but that any church unions would be into the Roman church, thus simply swelling the present Romish movement.

The other source of merger talks is the so-called “liberal” wing of Christian theology, which would have us all forget our differences of doctrine, and join hands in a vast homogeny of faith. The password for this merger movement is “tolerance”—tolerance even of what we as evangelical Christians understand to be blasphemous views of Christ that reduce Him from His divinity to headmaster in the school of social religion.

In clarifying our thinking about church mergers and Christian unity among believers, we need to remember that the true Church is not any or all human church organizations. We need to reaffirm the command of Paul to Timothy as a command to ourselves to “take heed” to ourselves and “unto the doctrine” (I Timothy 4:16), realizing that the time has come when the large body of Christianity “will not endure sound doctrine” (II Timothy 4:3). If doctrines are not important to the liberals and the ritualists, they are to us the very bones, the skeleton, on which our spiritual life depends for shape and strength.

We need to see that “merger” and “unity” are not synonymous, for joining human organizations does not increase the unity of a true church that is already a living organism. It is heartening to realize that there are no hypocrites, no false teachers, no heretics, in the Church of which we as born-again Christians are members.

There is an ecumenical movement, however, which we as Nazarenes can gladly join. Indeed, it is the hope of our divided world. While church mergers and vast super-denominations cannot hope to present a truly united front to the antagonistic forces of communism, a genuine spiritual awakening, breathed by the Holy Spirit in answer to prayer and faithful preaching about God, man, sin, and atonement through the blood of Jesus, can in these last days bring about a harvest in all the churches and denominations that make up the divine Church.

As Nazarenes, we have a distinctive role in any such turning to God. This role does not involve merging our doctrine of holiness into insignificance among the contradiction of others, no matter how sincere. Rather, we must live our doctrine in its fullness, and with Christian love, honoring the Holy Spirit, be a standard-bearer among Christians, truly putting evangelism to the fore! Only through personal and total commitment to Jesus Christ can the people of the various churches and the world, find true ecumenical unity.
End of the JOURNEY

JUST NOW Rev. and Mrs. Jarrell Garsee have completed their first year of service in American Samoa. Mrs. Young and I have finished a brief stay in checking and boosting this most recent overseas assignment of our church. The Garsees are giving a good account of their stewardship. If I can identify true missionaries when I see them in operation, they belong to that honored class.

Yesterday (Sunday) we heard the “Showers of Blessing” program in Pago Pago, on the island of Tutuila. We can assure Dr. T. W. Willingham that his message on prayer was a message of hope and one for heart searching to this traveling general superintendent. Also, the songs brought joy and blessing to us on that South Pacific island. Our program is now scheduled regularly at 2:00 p.m. each Sunday through the courtesy of the government radio station.

The writer was privileged to visit personally with Governor Coleman and also with the Lieutenant Governor. Both of these men have been cordial and cooperative with our church’s effort to serve in Samoa. They commended the work of Rev. Jarrell Garsee during these beginning months.

We also spoke at an interdenominational rally on Thursday night in a government auditorium. Some one hundred fifty people were present, largely Samoans. We also brought a Biblical message on Sunday morning to a group of Europeans who meet regularly in the government clubhouse for church services on Sunday morning. Some twenty-five people were present, mostly government employees and administrators. They were warm to the gospel message.

We preached twice to our Samoan people and found them receptive to the gospel call. They are proud to be American nationals as well as Samoans. In terms of Protestant missions, our church is rather late on the scene here; but in terms of twenty thousand people on three islands with their deep spiritual needs, there are not too many who are pressing the claims of the gospel with simplicity and divine power.

American Samoa is actually a non-self-governing territory, but they are moving in the direction of self-government. For the past ten years the government has been administered through the Department of the Interior, but for fifty years prior to that they were under the direct naval administration. The port is one of the most beautiful harbors in the entire South Pacific.

Sin is real in American Samoa too. But Christ died for these people. Samoa belongs in the General Budget, and its place these days in your prayer list should be near the top. Pray that we shall be able to locate the right location for headquarters and that Brother Garsee may receive divine help as he labors to learn the language of the people.

Our next stop is Los Angeles. Tomorrow (D.V.) I shall meet with my colleagues and report on this entire trip.

NEVER LESS ALONE!

By J. KENNETH GRIDER

My soul is never less alone
Than when alone with God;
In fellowship with Him in prayer,
I know His fav’ring nod.

Eye hath not seen, hand hath not touched
The God to whom I pray;
And yet He’s present with my heart
When prayer begins the day.

And thro’ the day, whate’er my task,
I feel Him at my side;
Now and again I breathe a prayer
And to my God confide.

If fellowship with Him below
Is choicest company,
What will it be in heaven above
Throughout eternity!

And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called (Mark 10:19).

By ALBERT M. WELLS
Pastor, Sidney, Nebraska

In our day many blind persons carry on quite normal and well-integrated lives. There are certain skills they learn at schools for the blind. Through the sense of touch they learn to read from Braille print, and thereby have access to educational opportunities.

During the time of Jesus’ ministry, however, there were no doors open to the blind. Thus they were forced to throw themselves upon the mercy of society, and there was little mercy. With not much choice in the matter, they reluctantly accepted and endured a life of begging.

Bartimaeus had heard that Jesus was passing by that day. He had heard that Jesus was the “son of David,” and “the Messiah,” and that He could do many mighty things. Could he attract the attention of this One called the Christ and stop Him, even if only for a moment? Or would Jesus pass by through the crowded community without stopping?

This was a crisis for Bartimaeus, and perhaps for the first time in his life he prayed. Consider, then, the prayer of blind Bartimaeus, for it was the prayer that stopped Christ.

A Prayer in Desperation

In verse 1 we are told that when Bartimaeus heard that Jesus was drawing near “he began to cry out, . . .” He raised his voice and shouted out, because his was a prayer in desperation.

Strange as it may seem, Webster’s dictionary in one place defines “desperation” as a state of “being blind.” W. T. Purkiser says: “There is something about the prayer of desperation which gets results that the prayer of desire does not always bring.”

And so in desperation Bartimaeus broke the pressure barrier of his handicap and projected his voice loud and clear as he “cried out” to the “son of David,” to Jesus of Nazareth.

A Prayer in Determination

Not only did Bartimaeus pray in desperation; his was also a prayer of determination. There were those in the crowd who were shocked by the loud outcries of this beggar. They felt that such praying was disrespectful. They believed in dignity. Theirs was a type of dignity that has well been described as a pose of the body to conceal the defects of the soul. They were more concerned, it seems, with being dignified than with being helpful. And so these dignified persons who were standing close by made an effort to put down and silence this uncouth beggar by whose very presence they were embarrassed. But his was a prayer in determination and we read in verse 48 that he “cried the more a great deal.”

Determination was, and is, rewarding. Jesus, upon hearing the beggar’s prayer, “stood still.” Then He called for Bartimaeus to be brought forth. What a thrill it must have been to hear the summons of Jesus! Nobody had ever wanted him before. If he had given up after one cry for mercy, the Master would have passed him by. But now, because of his undying determination, he finds himself standing before an interested and stopped Christ.

A Prayer in Dedication

Jesus not only healed him of his physical blindness, but Bartimaeus also received that day spiritual sight through his encounter with Christ. So the prayer of blind Bartimaeus was characterized by one thing more—dedication. For verse 52 says, “And [he] followed Jesus.”

Perhaps Jesus is passing by your station in life today. Perhaps you can feel His presence near—even this very moment. That quick ear of the Master, which discerned the difference between the unreal shouts of the crowd and the utter sincerity in the cry of Bartimaeus, is still open. In desperation, in determination, and in dedication say with your heart: “O Lord, have mercy upon me.” This is the prayer that stops Christ.
ONE of the interesting and encouraging developments in the church world of recent years has been a revival of interest in the subject of divine healing. Many are still skeptical. Medical authorities tend to explain healings on the basis of "wrong diagnosis." Even church people may maintain the same attitude.

On the other hand, there are those Christians who believe that all sickness is of the devil, and that thus it is always God's will to heal every disease. Others would say that God has the power to heal all manner of disease, but that it is out of divine order to pray that He will heal the body without injecting "if it be Thy will," with the understanding that there are instances when we are allowed to suffer for the glory of God. Job's suffering, and Paul's "thorn in the flesh," are often referred to as evidence of this. One thing is certain, God does not heal to the glory of men, but in all instances to glorify himself.

It was my privilege as pastor to pray with a lady of our church about whom reputable medical men had said, "No cure." Her illness was diagnosed as aplastic anemia, a serious disease of the blood-forming organs. The diagnosis was confirmed by specialists in two noted clinics.

There is no specific therapy for aplastic anemia. In rare instances, patients may recover after months of supportive care. Repeated transfusions of blood are the most important form of treatment. The patient, Mrs. Grace Baker, of Attica, Kansas, was told that she must expect to have a blood transfusion about every three weeks as long as she lived. For over a year the condition persisted, during which time a total of sixteen blood transfusions were given.

Then, one Sunday evening in September, 1959, God heard our prayers. Mrs. Baker was completely and immediately healed. She has not had a single transfusion since, and her doctor has signed a statement to the effect that she seems to be in perfectly normal health. No trace of any recurrence of the malady has appeared in more than eighteen months. The miraculous healing of Mrs. Grace Baker is a recognized fact in the entire community.

What we see as we watch the life of Jesus is the very life of heaven—indeed of God—in human expression.—William Temple.

and had never witnessed a definite cure. He states further that preachers who prayed for others to be healed always side-stepped those suffering from organic illness, praying more often for those with the so-called "functional disorders."

This writer has seen many demonstrations of God's power to heal, including a number in our local Church of the Nazarene. Many of these were definitely "organic illnesses," not mere "functional disorders." When specialists have declared certain ailments to be incurable, many times setting the length of time one can live because of it, surely we ought not to consider such a mere functional disorder.

Our Nazarenes need not run to specialized "faith healers" when the same Jesus can and will meet all our needs if we pray, and lift up clean hands and pure hearts.

This closing word of advice: Don't have the presumption to ask Christ to heal your body unless you are a Christian and striving to do His will. Why should He heal you so you can be more physically fit to serve the devil?

My prayer is, "God give us more praying preachers and laymen who have faith as a grain of mustard seed."

We fight from the throne downwards. Such a statement needs explanation.

By “we” is meant that minority of Christians who have learned the grand secret of triumphant warfare against sin and evil spirits. By the “throne” is meant God’s seat of government and grace in heaven. On the right hand of that throne sits the risen and exalted Lord Jesus. And, wonder of wonders, Paul tells us that true followers of the Lamb have the inestimable privilege of sitting together with Christ in heavenly places—not only in the afterlife, but here and now, in this present world.

The tragedy in Christian experience is that most children of God seem to live subnormally. They live far below their privileges in Christ. Two magnificent phrases in the Epistle to the Ephesians emphasize this stark catastrophe. They are:

1. “The exceeding greatness of his power” (1:19)
2. “The exceeding riches of his grace” (2:7)

The standard miracle of the Old Testament was the Red Sea crossing by the children of Israel. It brought their deliverance from the graveyard of Egyptian bondage, and their entrance into a new life—a life of liberty and fellowship with God. This miracle was an example of the exceeding greatness of Jehovah’s power to His redeemed people. It was wrought in response to their obedience and faith. They had slain the Passover lambs and had followed the cloudy pillar right to the edge of the Red Sea. Then came the command of God to go forward into the sea. In faith they obeyed that word and were delivered. Down through the succeeding centuries the Old Testament writers repeatedly referred to that demonstration of God’s power at the Red Sea. To them it was the peak miracle on behalf of Israel.

But the greatest miracle of the ages was the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It was accomplished because of Christ’s obedience to, and faith in, His Heavenly Father.

On the Cross, Jesus had fought the greatest fight of faith in history. Crucified in weakness. He had withstood the cruel taunts of Satan. No doubt the devil had told Him that His bones would be broken and His body thrown into the Valley of Hinnom for total destruction. The prince of darkness also may have said that soon Christ would enter Hades, the place of departed spirits, there to remain for ages. God had forsaken Him; His body would rot and His soul would be left in Hades. Thus the battle of faith raged as Satan taunted the dying Son of God.

But Jesus remembered and clung to those gracious promises which had been written concerning himself: “A bone of him shall not be broken”; “Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell [or sheol]; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption” (John 19:36; Psalms 16:10; Acts 2:27).

And the Father vindicated the faith of Him who had been obedient unto death, by raising Him from the dead. Through the “exceeding greatness of his power,” the gates of Hades were flung open that Christ might re-enter the tomb, to take up and glorify His body, which had lain there since Calvary. In that glorified body Jesus swept through all the realms of satanic power, and took His rightful place at the Father’s right hand. He is there just now, in supreme authority, “far above all principality, and power, and might.” All things are “under his feet” (Ephesians 1:20-22). The supreme miracle is now history.

But that same omnipotent power which raised Christ from the dead is now at the disposal of onetime rebels against God. That is “the exceeding riches of his grace.” The mind reels and yet rejoices at the revelation of Ephesians 1 and 2. Paul prayed that the saints might know and understand “...what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, ...” (1:19-20). The apostle goes on to say that this surpassingly great power of God on our behalf not only lifts us from the graveyard and bondage of sin; it also exalts us to “sit together in heavenly places in Christ.” This means that the Christian, while still living in a world of sin and shame, can make his real residence with Jesus on the throne.

This royal residence is the place of conquest, conflict, and communion. Christ has delegated authority to His saints. They are the members of His mystic body, through which He manifests His power and glory in this world (I Corinthians 12:27; Ephesians 1:23; II Corinthians 8:23).
But this delegated authority is not for "bossing the show" or "lauding it over God's heritage." Christians who truly sit in the heavenlies with Christ submit themselves one to another in the fear of the Lord. In lowliness of mind they esteem others better than themselves. Their authority is exercised against Satan and all the powers of evil. They fight not against flesh and blood, but against those wicked spirits who now control the mass of humanity on earth (Ephesians 2:2; 1 John 5:19). Therefore their weapons are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of satanic strongholds.

These "throne room saints" are the only ones who really count for God in the extension of His kingdom. They fight "from the throne downwards." They know that no spiritual awakening can come to sin-oppressed men and women until, first of all, the powers of darkness are bound in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. So, taking by faith their rightful place in "the heavenlies," they prevail in prayer against the unseen forces of evil which seek to destroy and pollute the minds and bodies of unregenerate sinners.

Often the conflict is severe and prolonged, as in the case of Daniel, who on one occasion had to hold on in prayer and fasting for three weeks before victory was secured over a high-ranking demon called "the prince of Persia" (Daniel 10:2-3, 11-14). But conquest is assured to the throne room warrior in prayer. He sits in constant fellowship with Him who is "far above all principality, and power." He shares in His glorious victory against the legions of darkness. He sings:

"Hallelujah, I have crossed the riven vail Where the glories never fail; I am living in the presence of the King."

Such a throne room life is possible only through the operation of the Holy Spirit as He comes to cleanse and fully control the obedient, believing Christian. Through the eternal Spirit, Christ offered himself on Calvary as a supreme Sacrifice for sin. By the power of that same Holy Spirit, He was raised from the dead (Romans 9:14). In this dispensation of grace the fullness of the Holy Spirit is given to those who ask, obey, and believe.

Jesus said: "How much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" (Luke 11:13)

Peter declared that the Holy Spirit is "given to them that obey him"—God (Acts 5:32).

Paul stated: "That we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith" (Galatians 3:14).

God's skies are full of Pentecosts,
For you, for me, for all:
Then let us boldly press our claim
Till fire from heaven fall.

By EVANGELIST HUGH SLATER

These new vehicles of destruction, called "doomsday weapons" by the Pentagon in Washington, are not the bad dream of some obscure science-fiction writer, nor the whinings of an "alarmist evangelist," but the subject of serious planning by our military strategists.

Modern weapons have now reached the stage where planners envision instruments of destruction so lethal that one of them would suffice to incinerate the entire continent of Europe or the United States west of the Rockies. Such a weapon would render obsolete the Strategic Air Command and the Polaris missiles that are in operation now. Our policy of refusing to strike the first blow leaves us vulnerable to our would-be aggressors. The alternative, say military planners, is a stand-by deterrent force capable of literally obliterating the enemy at one fell swoop.

A one-begaton weapon, for instance—the equivalent of one billion tons of TNT—would pack the destructive force of a thousand missiles such as the Polaris or Minuteman, and would cost only a few hundred million dollars instead of as many billion. The magnitude of a doomsday explosion becomes evident when we remember that scientists tell us that a single Polaris or Minuteman can produce more destruction than all the bombs dropped by both sides in World War II.

These developments serve us with an eerie reminder that doomsday is indeed literally just around the corner. Doomsday—a man-made doomsday, that is—would dawn when someone, somewhere, makes a single miscalculation, a single error of judgment, or indulges in a brief moment of overconfidence.

However, the Apostle Peter declares that the earth and the atmospheric heavens above it are "kept in store" by the great Arbiter of human destiny until the day when He himself shall descend from the skies. Then and only then, he says, the atmospheric heavens "shall pass away with a great noise, and . . . the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." In an instant the entire atmosphere will become a solid mass of fire, and the elements that compose this old world will "melt with fervent heat" (II Peter 3:10).

As the apostle meditates upon this awesome spectacle he asks, in view of these things, "What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" and then soberly reminds us that we are even now "hasting unto the coming of the day of God" (II Peter 3:12). Is not such a fearful prospect enough to rouse us from a business-as-usual, eat-drink-and-be-merry attitude? In what somber tones must God speak before we will listen?

Unless we are ready to heed the warning words of the apostle today we cast our vote, in effect at least, with those whom he classes as "scoffers" and "willingly ignorant," with the men and women who made light of Noah's solemn message and who taunted him as he went persistently about his labors in that ancient shipyard. In so doing we are forgetful that the heavens and earth of our day are, by the same word that loosed a deluge of waters upon the ancient world, "kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men" (II Peter 3:7).

Spiritual complacency is the most lethal weapon in Satan's arsenal. With it he is able sometimes to convince even Christians that "all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation," and that their Lord delays His coming. The antidote our Lord prescribes for this deadly miasma is a spirit of watchful waiting and occupancy in the vineyard of the Lord. Certain it is that none who witness the dawning of doomsday will feel complacent. Let us not surrender to a spirit of complacency today, lest that day take us by surprise, as it will the vast majority of earth's inhabitants, but let us put into practice the challenge of our Lord prescribes for this deadly miasma is a spirit of watchful waiting and occupancy in the vineyard of the Lord. Certain it is that none who witness the dawning of doomsday will feel complacent. Let us not surrender to a spirit of complacency today, lest that day take us by surprise, as it will the vast majority of earth's inhabitants, but let us put into practice the challenge of our general church for this quadrennium, "Evangelism First."

The end of evangelism is not alone the building a great church, but contributing to a great Kingdom. The purpose of consecrated Christian service is not running an organization, but by prayer and personal work bringing young and old to full surrender to the Lord of the Church.

So let us give our hands to Kingdom building— not little empires of organization men to do our bidding; but the kingdom of our God and of His Christ!

Editorial Notes

Special attention is called to the announcement on pages 19 and 20 of materials for the emphasis of this year on the Sunday night evangelistic services, together with redesigned materials for the "Try Christ's Way" theme. These are aids which will be found effective to the degree that they are used. The emphasis on the Sunday evening service will climax with "Fourteen Sunday Nights of Evangelism" during October, November, and December of this year.

We are beginning this week a series of cover portraits of the general superintendents of the Church of the Nazarene. Most of these are new pictures, taken for this purpose. We are sure many subscribers will want to preserve this and the next five Herald covers. Publication is in the order of election to the general superintendency. Following the picture of Dr. Powers on this issue will be Dr. Williamson on May 31, Dr. Young on June 7, Dr. Vanderpool on June 14, Dr. Benner on June 21, and Dr. Lewis on June 28.

Since the days of Job in the Old Testament, men have wondered about the fact that suffering and trial often are the lot of those who seem to deserve better. It is easy to think that God would reward righteousness and good motives with a greater measure of happiness and prosperity, and that He would punish evil with misery and adversity. Yet the wicked may seem to prosper, and the way of the righteous be thorny with trial and disappointment.

And since the days of Job in the Old Testament, no one has found a better answer to this problem than Job finally came to. God did not answer his agonized "Why's." He simply revealed himself to Job as the kind of God one could trust through sunshine or shadow, by still stream or dashing torrent, in pleasant meadow or on stark desert.

Some thro' the waters, some thro' the flood.
Some thro' the fire, but all thro' the Blood.
Some thro' great sorrow, but God gives a song
In the night season and all the day long.

The trial of the Christian's faith is described as the refining of gold, its dross burned out in the furnace until only the pure metal is left (I Peter 1:7). The process is never pleasant, but the product is precious. What has never been tested is always unsure. There was terrible agony in the soul of Abraham as for three days he journeyed toward the mountains of Moriah, desperately determined to obey in trust where he could not walk by sight. But it was worth it all when he heard God say, "Now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me" (Genesis 22:12).
Report on Mrs. Miller and Heather

Mrs. Miller writes that she and Heather have been discharged from the hospital, but still need our prayers as they convalesce at home. Pray that God will restore health, so that they may rejoin Mr. Miller in Taiwan soon.

Our Easter Sunday

As I looked out across our congregation this Easter morning my heart was full, for I realized the message, “I am the resurrection, and the life,” is yet so new to these New Guinea people! Five years they have listened to it, and four years they have listened to it, and are ready to hear it again.

As I told the story of God raising Jesus from the grave, there was a loud murmur of assent from all of them. Our people have been so afraid of death and the hereafter that it is a thrill to see their faces light up when they realize a little of the truth that Jesus did die for them. He conquered death and the grave for them, and when they belong to Him they can relax and let Him take care of all their fears and perplexities.

Every year this wonderful power of the Resurrection grips me a little more. May we ever draw closer to Him who is our only Hope and Life and Joy and Glory.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Young were here a few days the last of March. The high light of their visit was on Sunday as several hundred people gathered along the bank of river Kanka and Dr. Young baptized the very first ones of our group here in New Guinea. There were two who were able to be in this first class. Many others have stepped out and taken a stand for Jesus, but because of their primitive background they have many things to straighten up in their lives and many heathen customs to overcome. It will be a while before these are eligible for baptism. But how good it is to see them so sincere, and walking in the little light they have received! Pray for them—Satan isn't giving them up easily.

Let me tell you of the two who were baptized. One is one of our schoolboys—Kambi, who has never faltered a moment from the time he told us he wanted to “beshin Jesus.” He says God has called him to preach. He is in the fifth standard in school and is one of our brightest pupils. He has a real influence among the others. The other boy is Gwola, the one who is my interpreter. He came to us first at an outstation meetinging, contacted by Mr. Conder. Noticing that he sang the hymns and joined in the service, we questioned him and learned that he already believed in Jesus, and was trying to live a Christian life. Mrs. Conder brought him down to the station at Ketimp to work, and he has been in our study classes, as well as working as my interpreter. What a joy it was to see him taking this further step in following Christ. Here again, Satan will not give up his hold easily.

There are many temptations to these comparatively new Christians. They must learn to lean heavily on Jesus as they walk this way that is so new to them and their people. It is difficult for some of our folk to distinguish between the good and bad customs of their tribes, for all have been followed for countless generations. It takes much love and patient teaching to get them to understand Christian standards and the why of them—Wanda Knox, New Guinea.

SUNDAY NIGHTS OF SALVATION

To permanently increase our congregation on Sunday nights it is necessary to find NEW PEOPLE, get them to church, and retain them after their first visit. How shall that be done? See that every Nazarene gets interested in every visitor. Introduce your visitors to some soul-loving Nazarene who will establish contact through the week and keep an interest in them. Remember the visitor can be kept attending Sunday nights only by increased interest in the service, by an awakening of a spiritual need, or by the receiving of spiritual blessing and help.

Each Nazarene is called to “Evangelism First” through the Sunday night service all through 1961. Every church must manipulate the increasing public knowledge and confidence in our church as a way of increasing the Sunday night congregation. Use advertising in every way you can. Posters still attract attention, and newspapers are still available for advertising. A contact list can be made from Sunday school families, relatives, and friends of the church. This Sunday night evangelism is an all-out effort.

The quality of our Sunday evening church service has a decided influence upon attendance. A blessed, lively, and interesting service will attract people. Nothing is more disastrous to Sunday night evangelism than a disinterested newcomer. Our Sunday night services must meet expectations. Remember that on Sunday night if we get new people and give them only stones to eat we must not be surprised if they do not come again. The people of 1961 are hungry for bread. Our Sunday night services must be the kind that will hold them and bring them back even though soul conviction may not come at the first service.

The pastor must lead the service. In every service there are passing moods, waves of feeling and blessing, incidents, and interruptions. The rise and the fall of spiritual power in a Sunday night service depends to a large extent on the wisdom, the skill, the blessing, and the leadership of the pastor. He, by his selecting, withholding, and utilizing all available sources of help, creates the spiritual atmosphere. But every lay person has a part; the human touch means so much to so many in this lonely, tragic day in which we live. It is the greatest value to a Sunday night service to have faithful lay people who love the Lord and love people, who are able to sympathize in sorrow, understand in strangeness, for they help in bringing the service to the greatest number with the greatest good.

While our Master did a tremendous work with the individual soul, the church needs to remember that He also touched great crowds of people. While He took as much pain in witnessing to one as to a crowd, He did witness to a taufiful finding out of the circumstances, the needs, and the habits of the people called on, will bring dividends if we STAY WITH IT. A sincere laywoman said to me recently, "I spend two afternoons a week and make a total of thirty calls and I rarely pass through an afternoon without at least two people making me welcome and becoming my contacts." Work that out two people a day, two days a week, and fifty-two weeks in a year would give over two hundred contacts. Although experience would prove she could not win them all, yet the influence of one worker like that in a church would prove a substantial increase in any Sunday night congregation as well as many new children and adults for the Sunday school.

Fifty years ago when our "church was young," men were hardened and bound by sin, longing for a Saviour and a Deliverer, and the Sunday night services of salvation in that day met their need. Men are the same today. Sin is the same today. The failings, the yearnings, the longings, the fears, and the hopes of the human heart are the same. Our Saviour is the same, and the Blood is still as powerful. It is well for us to remember that clothing worn fifty years ago is not worn today. It is, therefore, our task to introduce our methods for Sunday night evangelism in 1961, but with the same presence and power of the Holy Spirit.

In every church, large or small, if our pastors and people will work sincerely and industriously with a real love for sinners, to that church shall come a continual flow of new people on Sunday nights who will become new children of our God and be cemented by membership into our church. This is Sunday Nights of Salvation in 1961.

Okay. Stop. And so I have. Now what?

In this moment of stillness the ways of the Lord are to be contemplated. And from them may a fresh touch of form discipline move into our lives. His words are to be kept, guarded like the gold of Fort Knox. Precious are they to the heart; an ointment are they to the eyes; peace are they to the mind; health are they to the marrow. (And how oft have they slipped from my presence like a lost shoe?)

His commandments are to be laid up, stacked away like fruit in a cellar. In the summer the ant stores food for the winter. In the good days we are to store spiritual food for the bad days. In the hill country we would run to the fruit cellar during the thunder and lightning storms—safety and safety were both there! So with His commandments—"A man [Christ] shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest" (Isaiah 32:2).

His words—His commandments—His wisdom—these are the needs of my life. No premium is placed upon stupidity of mind or heart. The wisdom from above, which is first pure, then peaceful, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy (James 3:17), is the inward cry.

These things, so says my heart while all is stopped, constitute the real values. And I must not lose them even though a man has been hurled through space, even though Cuba and Algeria and Laos and Albania and unnamed other world spots are hurting and bleeding. These I must not lose if from my hands I must fill "things which must be done" and from my schedule I must remove events which "must be attended."

Not all news is bad news in the area of temperance. In the December, 1968, issue of the American issue there is a report telling of the defeat of a bill designed to increase the number of liquor-by-the-drink outlets in the state of Washington.

Voters in the state of Washington on November 8, 1960, rejected Initiative No. 205 to increase the number of liquor-by-the-drink outlets would be sold. The measure was defeated by a margin of two to one. The Alcohol Problems Association of Washington, led by its executive director, H. H. Hill, fought a hard campaign to win the victory. Backed by the churches of the state, the dry organization used radio, television, and newspapers to reach the voters with the facts. They distributed over 1,000,000 pieces of literature, which assisted in persuading the voters that passage of Initiative No. 205, "...to increase the number of liquor-by-the-drink outlets in the state of Washington."
Evanston, Illinois—Pastor John White and the youth of our church, with Pastor Paul White, went to Noble, with Pastor John Eck—our fourth revival with this church that began on January 1. We began our work with a service of prayer and special singing, followed by a service of confession and prayer for the altar. Then we went to Highland, a four-service convention in Mount Carmel, Illinois, with Pastor Paul White; with Pastor Daniel Lyons, God met with H. M. Foster is the pastor, and during the first four days fifty-four people have accepted the challenge of a home church, and the pastor was given an increase in salary. A nice class united with the church, and the pastor was given an increase in salary. At Haleyburg, Indiana, with Pastor Daniel Lyons, God met with us in waves of glory and many victories around the altar. Here we assisted in the music and special singing by the 'Singing Mitchells,' our son-in-law, daughter, and family. One night during the singing, ten people sought God, with no preaching. In each of these meetings we received a call to return. God gave us a fine revival with Pastor Loy Gautheir in Mount Erie. We are in Pittsfield, Illinois, at this writing. Rev. H. M. Foster is the pastor, and during the first four days fifty-four people have sought help from God at the altar of prayer. Wife travels with me in most of my meetings, and I appreciate her help as an altar worker. She carries a real burden for souls, also assists with the special singing when called upon, and plays the piano where needed. We are making up our slate for 1962 and will be glad to go anywhere as the Lord may lead. Write us, 401 W. Sixth Street, Beardstown, Illinois.

Rev. Raymond F. Friberg writes: "After five wonderful years as pastor of our church in Kirkland, Washington, we have accepted the challenge of a home mission church at Lake Hills, a residential area in Bellevue, Washington. This is the fastest growing section of the rapidly expanding Puget Sound area, and the new postal area includes over forty-eight thousand people. The opening rally on Sunday, April 9, was wonderfully supported by pastors from every department of the work here.—L. D. Lockwood, Pastor.

Highland, Indiana—Recently our church had a good revival with Rev. A. V. Jackson doing the preaching. As a result of his wonderful messages, a goodly number of hungry believers found their way to the altar seeking God for pardon and cleansing. God is blessing and new people are coming to the services since this meeting. Five new members have been added to the church recently. The church has now voted to buy a property joining our building on the cast, and this will make it possible to enlarge our building in the near future. Our people have given us a wonderful vote to stay for the fifth year and we are believing God for greater victories here at Highland.—I. O. H. Yochim, Pastor.

Charleston, West Virginia—The year of 1960 was one of blessing for the Loudendale Church. In February, Rev. John F. Hay came as pastor, and immediately plans were made to complete our present church building. We now have a beautiful, modern church building, equipped with new pews and pulpit furniture. Under the leadership of Pastor Hay, all departments of the church have shown a fine increase in membership and attendance. Our church cooperates with the general church program, and pastor and people are united in the work of the Kingdom. Recently we gave our pastor a "Surprise Easter shower" of groceries as a token of our appreciation for him and his work. We give God praise for all His blessings on the Loudendale Church.—Mrs. Florence Patrick, Secretary.

Tooppenish, Washington—Since coming here last September we have seen gains in every department of the work. The first Sunday we had three in Sunday school, and on Easter Sunday we closed our day with sixty-three. At a service of calling, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Grobe of Calgary, Alberta, as the special workers, and seventy-four present in Sunday school, and a total of 30 in the regular services which followed, with a total of 30 in the regular services and 35 junior and primary age children in a special service. Six new members were united with us and by transfer were received on the closing Sunday. The singing, playing, preaching, and calling combine to make Brother and Sister Crews a choice couple for evangelistic efforts. The people accepted the challenge of calling, and over eleven hundred calls were reported during the campaign. God is helping us as a church to meet our responsibility to the 23,000 residents of Killeen, and the 40,000 soldiers and dependents of Fort Hood. If we can help any of your friends in this area, write us (108 E. Dunn Avenue).—Wendell A. Russell, Pastor.

Washington, Pennsylvania—First Church has broken all previous records in any single offering for missions, in its Easter offering. Total cash received has exceeded the $1,225 mark. With shouts of praise for the manifold blessings of God upon the church, we rejoiced that this Easter offering surpassed anything the church ever had done. Our church is strong in the belief that a '10 per cent' church for missions will be a church blessed of God.—William G. Ardev, Pastor.
Evangelist Marvin S. Cooper writes:
"I am now in my twelfth week of consecutive meetings and have ten to follow. Surely the Lord, the pastors, and the people were in the right place and opportune. I have never felt more of the presence of God, nor enjoyed more of His blessing upon our soul and my ministry than during these days. To prevent much traveling, I am grouping my meetings, and have some open dates for the fall. Write me, 1514 N. Wakefield Street, Arlington 7, Virginia."

Large, Ohio—In March our church had a successful revival in which God wonderfully blessed the ministry of Evangelist W. F. Miller to our hearts. Thirty-five seekers prayed through at the altar. A wonderful spirit of unity and victory prevails among our people. Coming here in March of 1960 we found a group of loyal Nazarenes. Twice during this year the church has broken attendance records with 152 and 161 present. We thank God for His blessings upon this church, which is less than four years old.—W. Byron Strange, Pastor.

Idaho-Oregon District

N.Y.P.S. Convention

The thirty-first N.Y.P.S. convention of the Idaho-Oregon District met at Boise First Church, April 5 and 6. The inspiring messages were by Rev. C. W. Elkins of Phoenix, Arizona, captured the hearts and attention of all present, including a large group of our teen-age delegates.

District President Chester Galloway gave a wonderful report of progress for the past year. He is leaving the district to further his studies toward his doctorate degree, and will be greatly missed.

Rev. Omer Barnhouse of Nyssa, Oregon, was elected as the new president. Other officers elected were: Rev. Wendell Wellman, vice-president; Mrs. Eunice Brown, secretary; Clarence Chittenden, treasurer; Rev. Mel Laws, young adult leader; and Mrs. Frances Armstrong, junior fellowship, Rev. Wayne Nelson, president; Mrs. Christel Vieg.

The annual N.Y.P.S. banquet was held on Thursday evening at the Boise Y.W.C.A. More than two hundred were present to enjoy the fellowship and challenges of our convention speaker.

We look forward to another year of blessing and progress in the work of the N.Y.P.S.—Oscar Barnhouse, Secretary.

Eureka, California—The Humboldt Hill Church was organized one year ago, on April 17, and we are enjoying the blessings of the Lord on this new work. On the first Sunday we had 54 in Sunday school, and since last September we have averaged more than 84 in Sunday school. We had a wonderful revival with Rev. R. T. Kaldenberg as the evangelist, and God gave 43 seekers at the altar, and we are thrilled to report that on Easter Sunday we took tall records with 153 in Sunday school—this being the first anniversary of this new church.

We have a wonderful group of folks who are working for God and the church, and we are located in the midst of a large housing development. Please pray for us and this new work.—K. L. Robinette, Pastor.

South Point, Ohio—On April 9, First Church closed a very fruitful revival with Evangelist Gene Clark, and a large number of folks received definite help at the altar, and others witnessed to receiving help from God also. The church is united and revived, and making plans for an Easter season of rejoicing, welcoming nineteen new members. Located in a new housing area, with a beautiful new church and a group of loyal Nazarenes, "Evangelism First" is our plan and our prayer. Coming here to the 5th pastorate and family have been received graciously and welcomed warmly.—Harley Duncan, Pastor.

Sunday School Evangelists Lyle and Lois Potter report: Eighty-six 'brand-new' children and adults were brought to the St. Paul’s Nazarene Sunday school in Kansas City, Missouri, recently during a five-day Sunday school crusade, emphasizing evangelism and Sunday school promotion. Rev. Paul McGrady, one of our 'live wire' pastors of the Midwest, is in charge, and the people responded to his challenge and example. Twenty-one volunteered to become 'car pastors' and continue to bring the new ones to Sunday school week by week. This pastor and people proved what can be done in our day for God and souls with a leader who has passion and vision, and a Spirit-anointed people with a mind to work."

Tansen, Nepal (MNS)—Nine citizens of this Hindu country recently made public confession of their faith in Jesus Christ and were baptized, it was reported by the United Mission of Nepal. Such a storm of protest was created that local authorities jailed the six Christians who were in town and are holding them pending a review of Nepal's old statute which permits anyone to leave "his own religion handed down from ancient times." It is hoped that Nepal's new constitution will invalidate the ancient law. Meanwhile, the three Christian couples are in jail awaiting their sentences. One of the women is seven months pregnant, one has an infant son with her, and the other is accompanied by an older child. Fellow Nepali Christians are contributing money to help buy necessities for the prisoners.

Islam Seen Greatest Threat to Christianity in Africa

LONDON—Warnings of the growing menace of Islam on the African continent came from three quarters last week.

Speaking in London, Bishop Stephen Bayne, executive officer of the Anglican communion, declared that Islam is the greatest threat to Christianity on the continent. Moslem missionaries are proving more adaptable than Christian missionaries he said, and are preaching an austere monotheism which is finding wide acceptance.

Bishop Bayne's warning was repeated in a speech, also in London, by Rev. J. M. Burns, domestic chaplain to the Archbishop of Cape Town. Mr. Burns reported that he had seen a noticeable drift from Orthodox Christianity.

He said it is "being increasingly viewed as allied with Western domination. The Church in South Africa is being attacked openly and this main attack comes from the resurgent forces of Islam. Africans are turning in ever increasing numbers to this alien faith."

Meanwhile last week in the United States leaders of one of the major U.S. Negro churches called upon their congregations to help send more Negro teachers and preachers to Africa to "counteract the Islamic charge that Christianity is a 'white man's religion.'"

The 19 bishops of the 1,200,000-member African Methodist Episcopal church in a message to the churches' 5,000 congregations declared that "since nearly two-thirds of the people [of Africa] are coloured this is our greatest test. Our victory over Communism and Islam can be assured if we learn to drop racial discrimination . . . ." (E.P.S. Geneva)

Do you think it is a wise thing to have insurance? I have a friend who said we are to trust God with all things.

It is a very wise thing to have insurance. I cannot see how making provision of this sort is any more distrust of God's providential care than plowing and sowing a field. Sometimes logic gets in the way of good sense.

In Genesis 6:4 there is the expression, "the daughters of men." Who were these sons of God?

The answer is at least implied in verse 2. These were marriages between the two lines of descent from Adam: descendents of Seth, called sons of God because through them the line of promise came; and the descendents of Cain, who were in town and are holding them away and be cut off between his special calling and his glorification (Romans xi:22). Neither does he deny that many are called who never are justified. He only affirms that is the method whereby God leads us step by step toward heaven . . . He speaks as one looking back from the goal upon the race of faith. Indeed grace, as it is glory begun, is both an earnest and foretaste of eternal glory" (Explanatory Notes).

I would like your opinion on Romans 8:30. Of whom was Paul speaking, the living or the Christians who had died? Especially I would like to have your opinion on the last part of this verse, as to those who are glorified. We had a difference of opinion in our Sunday school class. Some thought it meant the living, and others that they will be glorified after death.

The "glorification" takes place after death. The verse reads: "Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified." John Wesley says of this: "St. Paul does not affirm, either here or in any other part of his writings, that precisely the same number of men are called, justified, and glorified. He does not deny that a believer may fall away and be cut off between his special calling and his glorification (Romans xi:22). Neither does he deny that many are called who never are justified. He only affirms that is the method whereby God leads us step by step toward heaven . . . He speaks as one looking back from the goal upon the race of faith. Indeed grace, as it is glory begun, is both an earnest and foretaste of eternal glory" (Explanatory Notes).

We believe that Christ was a winebibber? The question was placed to me and I am afraid that I do not have the answer.

The scripture in question reads, "For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they said, He hath a devil. The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man glutinous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified of her children."

This was a false accusation, both in the case of John the Baptist, and in that of Jesus. Their enemies accused John of being demon-possessed, and they accused Jesus of gluttony and drunkenness. Both accusations were totally false and actually quite blasphemous. Any who would argue (as I suppose is the case in the background of this question) for use of intoxicants on the basis of this scripture are joining the enemies of Christ in their lying accusations. The same crowd later accused our Lord of blasphemy and inciting against the Roman government, and caused His crucifixion.

Can you clarify Jeremiah 31:37 in regard to present-day space exploration? Jeremiah 31:37 says, "Thus saith the Lord; If heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, I will also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith the Lord." The answer is at least implied in verse 2. These were marriages between the two lines of descent from Adam: descendents of Seth, called sons of God because through them the line of promise came; and the descendents of Cain, who were in town and are holding them away and be cut off between his special calling and his glorification (Romans xi:22). Neither does he deny that many are called who never are justified. He only affirms that is the method whereby God leads us step by step toward heaven . . . He speaks as one looking back from the goal upon the race of faith. Indeed grace, as it is glory begun, is both an earnest and foretaste of eternal glory" (Explanatory Notes).

This verse proclaims the fact that God's redeemed (verses 31-34) will never be deserted, even though man may seek to measure the heavens and bore through the crust of the earth.
